ALL USE IT. IT IS AT EVERY PICNIC.

IT IS IN EVERY KITCHEN AND CUPBOARD OF THE COLONIES. It has obtained the Gold Medal at the New Zealand Exhibition, and Silver Medal at the Perth Exhibition.

It is made from purest materials—wheat, barley, sugar, hops, malt, and yeast. It assuages digestion, and increases the appetite. It is placed at Government House, and is seen at every respectable dinner-table. The production of it has been the constant theme of orators because it is cheap. It is the especial favourite with soldiers because, no one of the Sydney Garrison writes, "It is the best yet made." It is the thirty years. With such a probable course of events it may be fair to assume that the ever-increasing production of capital will warrant our financial authorities in diminishing the duration of our loans beyond thirty years, the period which has been fixed for loans by governments preceding the present.

In England, as well as in the colonies, the ablest debates on public questions are not infrequently those which take place in the House of Lords that it is that it is from the House of Lords that we have received the weightiest deliverances on the existing relations between England and Russia. A few weeks ago the subject was introduced by the Duke of Argyll, and the speech of the Duke was followed by speeches from leaders on both the Liberal and the Conservative side. From these speeches we gather exactly what was the Ministerialist and what was the Oppositionist view, and while we are waiting for the next act of the drama we may conveniently put ourselves in possession of those views. The Duke of Argyll points out that, however the present dispute may end, the dispute itself must mark a new departure. Of necessity the position of Great Britain must hereafter be a changed one. If, then, we have held an unequal position, not only in England, but all over the world, in more senses than one Englishmen have been compassed by the inviolable sea. For purposes which it once answered, however, the inviolable sea has ceased to exist. England has become a continental power, and, if her new position brings her into contact with France, but with every Power in Europe. But if Egypt has effected a change more than a quarter of a century ago Russia had not crossed the Caspian; two years ago she had not taken Merv. Until recently she was separated by hundreds of miles of territory, not only from India, but from Afghanistan. The meeting of the lion and the bear, or, as Prince Bismarck has put it, of the elephant and the whale, has been a subject of discussion for many years past; but the meeting has always been treated as a thing of the future. As such it can be discussed no longer. Between England and Russia there is now no great divide. The frontier of the latter touches, if not the frontier of the former, that of the former's protected ally. For good or for evil Russia and Great Britain are now neighbours, and must continue to be neighbours. It is useless to ask whether this result is a good or a bad one. Mr. Cobden used to argue that there would be no peace until England was co-terminous with Russia. That is the opinion of Mr. Wallace. But it is useless discussing whether the new state of things is the better or the worse one; it is sufficient to know that it is inevitable.

As to the train of circumstances which has brought England and Russia together, there are two opposite sets of opinion. The Duke of Argyll has the courage to say that his opinion is not the popular one. The general view is that the policy which has brought the Russians to the vicinity of Herat is one of deceit and treachery. Lord R. Churchill is more emphatic than that. In a speech delivered not many days before he was made Indian Secretary his Lordship spoke as follows:—"He did not hesitate to say that all the treachery and duplicity of which examples could be found in the annals of diplomacy, none could exceed theirs for blackness and perversity." This is strong language, and Lord R. Churchill may not be allowed to forget it. But it is useless denying that it embodies the views of many Englishmen. Where Russia is concerned a large number of British patriots do not deign to argue, they scream. That the Muscovite has always been grasping and voracious is taken for granted. The view of the Russians themselves is that their advance has not been a matter of choice, but one of necessity. The principles which have governed it were embodied in a despatch which in 1864 Prince Gortschakoff sent to Russian representatives abroad. In this document the Prince lays down the doctrine that in spite of themselves civilized states must obtain the ascendancy over uncivilized tribes; but the Russian Chancellor pointed out that while Russia would feel it her duty to subjugate and robber tribes, she would always be content to live in peace with agricultural and commercial populations. The Russians claim that it is the encroachments of nomad and savage tribes that have brought them so far from their starting point. "That theory of the Russian advance," says the Duke of Argyll, "is the same time the Duke of Argyll does well to remind us that if Russia has broken her promises other nations have broken theirs, and that in war time promises and treaties are seldom respected. Nor is it amiss that we should be reminded that, if Russia has annexed extensively, Great Britain has annexed more extensively. Within the last 45 years we have annexed in our Indian territories alone populations representing 30 millions of souls, while the estimate of the total population between the Caspian and Merv, annexed by Russia, is less than one million. The whole Russian population of Central Asia is given as less than ten millions, and this, says the Duke of Argyll, is less than the population of a province of lower Bengal. Under these circumstances it is hardly to be wondered at that Russia should contend that if she is an offender it is not Great Britain that should cast the first stone.

But the important question is not how Russia reached the position she now occupies on the borders of Afghanistan, but what the policy of Great Britain should be now that she is there, and in regard to this point the debate in question gives us the views of both Liberals and Tories. It may be remarked that the new condition of things has necessitated a reconsideration of the plans of the old school of both soldiers and statesmen. The contention of the forward school has been that England should defend the Afghan frontier, beginning, of course, at Herat, while that of the backward school has been that India should be defended in India. By the Marquis of Salisbury at least the contention of the forward school is now given up. The Marquis Salisbury does not advocate the sending of British troops to Herat; the defence of Herat he would leave to Afghan troops under British direction. But he thinks that if needs be Great Britain should go to Candahar, and he is of opinion that we should go there whether the Afghans approve or disapprove, which means that not for the sake of India, but for that of Candahar, we should be ready to fight the Russians and the Afghans together. Lord Salisbury is also of opinion that while Russia should be held responsible for any further encroachments upon Afghan territory we should not be held responsible for the good behaviour of the Afghans. That is the Conservative view. The Liberal view, as expounded by Lord Kimberley, is that Great Britain should strongly fortify every point on the Indian frontier, including Quetta, and that she should support the Afghans by force in their own territory if the Afghans themselves are willing to be so supported; but not otherwise. Here, then, is the difference between the spokesmen of the two parties. Neither party contends that we should go to Herat, and both are of opinion that we should fortify our own frontier. The Liberals, however, maintain that in an emergency we should stop at Quetta, unless the AMERU is willing that we should go farther, while the Conservatives are of opinion that if needs be we should advance to Candahar with the consent of the AMERU or without that consent. The former is, of course, the bolder policy, but the latter seems to us the wiser and the safer one.

Following the Bathurst Farmers' Society, some agriculturists at Ulmarra have decided that a protection policy is essential to their interests. The first ground of their complaint is that they are poor; "between dry summers and heavy rain," they say, "they find it hard to rub along," and as they see no hope of changing either summers or winters for the better, they propose to do what they can for themselves, by closing the ports. It would be unkind to deny their poverty or the hard and unremunerative character of their toil; but it would be still more unkind to them, and unjust to the great majority of the people in the colony, to admit the suggestion that effective or legitimate relief would be found in protection. They complain that Victorian farmers pour their produce into New South Wales free of all duty, while New South Wales farmers cannot send one bushel across the border without paying a heavy tax. They claim to be put upon equal terms with Victorian farmers, by the imposition of an import duty in New South Wales. But how would they gain by such a duty? Victoria requires none of their produce. Victoria has no grain to compete with their maize. "If one farmer," they would have to take the maize and pay the duty, but they have lots of oats and therefore they do not require maize. Doubtless they have oats and wheat, also, enough and more than enough, for all their own wants. Certainly they can send some thousands of tons across their free port, and their paying freight on their own produce, and their poor farmers say, are ruinously low. The cure for the hard times is not in protection, but in the development of a better agricultural spirit and method, and a surer energy, and in the cheapening of carriage. Protection, best, would mean a tax upon the whole community in the interests of the farmers, or in other words a free gift, a State subsidy, to the growers of wheat, and oats, and maize. It would create permanent prosperity, and would foster the long-continued helplessness which has degraded the farming life of this colony. A Mr. Peck said, in moving the main resolution of the meeting, "There were hundreds of selectors in this colony owning the best of the land; but instead of working it on a large scale, say 150 acres, they worked but 20. They could not make use of the agricultural implements that the other colonies did, which were protected," and so saying touched the core of the present distress. In dealing with wheat and maize, as required with protection, why not the Ulmarra farmers try their efficacy without it? They practically admit that their rival beat them with better tools.

If the letter of Mr. J. S. Spence, upon the proposed resumption of a portion of the ocean fisheries at Manly is taken as the formal protest of the interested Church, it is a document which has not been cordially welcomed by the public. It displays a good deal of resentment and a great lack of charity, a steadfast clinging to the absolute exclusion (not secured by grant of upwards of fifty acres) essential to the timing of priests and the administration of foreign missions, and a total lack of care and regard for the absolute and reasonable desire of the public. It is, in the first place, a libel, and, in the second, a misleading letter. Libel, it makes light of the magnificent endowment, worth fully £50,000, of the grand plateau—the double view of harbour and ocean, which, despite the reputation of the beach, which is not to be denied, is as quiet as a lake, and as safe as a bed. But as well as selfishness there is ignorance, and the ignorance is shown first in the description of the grant, and, in connection therewith, the absurd statement that, had the beach not been put in the grant, Archibald Pollock would not have accepted the site; and in the concluding paragraph, where it is so easily as quite to fail of their purpose with people in any way well acquainted with the locality. What more absurd than to describe the beach in question as inaccessible. Sir Bowyer excepted, it is the only bit of sheltered beach available for the recreation of Manly or the people of Sydney who visit Manly; the only beach where a boat can be launched or a net be drawn; where children, after dining comfortably upon the grass and in the shade, can paddle safely in the surf. It is a place that accommodates at the last fifty picnics in every week; and, in the case of a duke, it is a place of no less importance for family parties to find a day's enjoyment than for fifty students to bathe in desirable season. After all, the matter may be very easily left to the Government, for it is a simple question which they will be required to decide—whether the ocean frontage is required for the public convenience and enjoyment, or whether that is suitable space elsewhere provided. They are only to arrive at a proper understanding in the matter, and then to give a right decision, and the decision will be welcomed by the people; the metropolitan of the colony far more glad than by the residents of Manly Beach. Nor is by any means probable that it will have the effect of stopping any works now in progress for the Roman Catholic Church, since the calm dignity and willing patriotism of that body are not to be confounded or associated with the petulance of Mr. J. S. Spence.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The most sensational item in our cable news this morning is that in relation to the cholera in Spain. It appears that no less than 9000 cases were reported last week, of which 4000, or nearly one-half, were fatal. Honors have of late been flying rather thickly in the old country. Lord Spencer, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, is to be raised to the rank of a duke; Sir James Fergusson, formerly Governor of South Australia, subsequently of New Zealand, and more recently of Bombay, has received the distinction of Knight Grand Commander of the Star of India; and General Sir Peter Lumsden, in recognition of his services in Afghanistan, has been made a Knight Grand Cross of the Bath.

Mr. A. STUART, the Hon. F. A. Wright, and the Hon. W. J. Tuckey, with the Parliamentary draftsman, were engaged for a long time on Saturday in settling the draft of the proposed Local Government Bill. The Orient Company's steamship Columbo arrived in port shortly after noon yesterday with 721 Government immigrants, from Plymouth, via Tauris and Capetown. The voyage has been a most tempestuous one, and, to add to the unpleasantness produced thereby, measles broke out soon after the vessel left Plymouth, and 75 cases occurred, though there were no deaths from that disease. Seven children, however, died from non-infectious complaints, and there was one birth. All the patients are now convalescent, and the vessel will only be kept in quarantine for three days, to enable the usual cleaning up operations to be performed.

We are requested to intimate that in view of the large number of representatives of country corps desirous of attending the banquet to the officers of the Continent on Tuesday evening next, officers in uniform will be allowed to travel free by rail for that purpose. On Saturday morning a visit of inspection was paid to the head works of the water supply of the Cataract, Gardens, and Nepean rivers by Mr. H. Hudson, of the firm Hudson Brothers, who have undertaken a contract to furnish Sydney within a period of four months with a daily supply of three million gallons of water. Mr. Hudson was accompanied by Messrs. Hutchinson and Humphrey, M.L.A., and Mr. Acheson, a contractor for portion of the proposed works. The visitors were taken through their journey by Mr. T. Keels, district engineer. The escape valve at the retaining wall was opened to allow the water to escape, and it was calculated that the supply thus running away was equal to 30 million gallons a day. From the Cataract river the visitors drove over to the "Thames" Nest, where the water of the Cataract was being collected, and followed by another retaining wall, and carried by means of a tunnel four and a half miles in length into the Cataract river. At this second wall the escaping water amounted to 60 million gallons daily. A very pleasant day was spent in exploring portion of one of the tunnels and examining the works, and the visitors started again in the afternoon for Campbelltown, reaching the 7:30 p.m. train for Sydney.

Saturday last, being the 100th anniversary of American Independence, was observed with customary loyalty and enthusiasm by Americans domiciled in or visiting Sydney. During the morning a number of leading public men and citizens attended at the U.S. Consulate to offer to the Consul their congratulations. The Consul, Mr. J. C. Williamson, responded by the form of a garden party and banquet at Botany in the afternoon, where a large number of guests went in a procession of some 20 carriages, with music playing and flags flying, the spectacle attracting a large share of attention as it passed through the streets. About 800 persons took part in the festive gathering at Botany. The banquet was held in the Sir Joseph Banks Pavilion, Miss Genevieve Ward, the popular actress, reading the Declaration of American Independence. Mr. Griffin presided, and proposed the toast of "The Queen," the Hon. W. B. Dalley proposing the health of the President of the United States. It was understood later on in the evening that the speech of the hon. gentleman would be telegraphed to America. The toast of "The Ministry" was responded to by the Hon. G. R. Dibbs. A number of other toasts were honoured. A few showers of rain fell during the evening, but did not cause any inconvenience. The proceedings, of which a full report appears in to-day's issue, terminated about 11 o'clock.

Tax economy in connection with the laying of the foundation stone of a new school for the children of the foundation stone was performed on Saturday afternoon. The stone was laid by Mrs. Barry. There was a large attendance, and an interesting address was delivered by the Prime Minister. The new school is to be erected upon a site adjoining the church, and will be a commodious and substantial structure. It will be erected at a cost of about £2500. The school will be under the management of the parish by the late incumbent, the Rev. Stanley Mitchell. The building will have a frontage of about 100 feet to Birrell-street. A report of the ceremony in connection with the laying of the stone appears in another portion of the paper.

The third session for the present year of the Sydney Technical College commences this week, and it is expected that the number of students in attendance will be much larger than for the corresponding session of 1884, when 1231 entries for the classes were made by 1144 individual students. In order to provide to some extent for the wants of a number of persons engaged in connection with our pastoral industry, a new class for the study of woolworking has been placed under the charge of Mr. J. W. Adley, who will give instruction in the proper cleaning and methods of shearing, and in the mending and fitting will commence operations under the supervision of Mr. John Fagan, and it should be of great service to apprentices and others desirous of learning the principles of engineering science. A pharmaceutical laboratory for practical work has just been fitted up under the supervision of Mr. Fred Wright, and will be open to the public. A class of students, many of whom are now attending other classes in the college, Endeavour are being made to form a class in mechanical dentistry, for which applications from intending students have been received. It is very gratifying to find from a comparison of the annual reports that during last year the Sydney Technical College was more successful than the Sydney Technical College, founded by the City and Guilds of London, in providing technical education. Besides in more than 60 classes at the Sydney Technical College, systematic instruction is given in the country institutions at Newcastle, Lambton, Waratah, Platberg, Bathurst, Goulburn, Gracville, and Grafton, and the students have been benefited by well-attended, especially those in the Newcastle and Bathurst districts. Suburban cookery classes for females have been held at the Glebe and Waterloo town halls, and a new class will commence operations in St. Mark's schoolroom next Thursday afternoon. Dr. R. von Lendenfeld, who is now lecturing for the hour, in connection with the classes on the diseases of plants and animals, reports great successes, consisting principally of farmers, who appear much interested in the subject-matter of his lectures. Mr. W. M. Foot, who recently delivered six lectures on the "Manufacture of Iron" at Lithgow, to appreciative audiences, has been engaged by the board to give a similar course at the Newcastle School of Arts. The lecture series commences delivered in the Technical College Hall four nights weekly, all the year round, for working-men, appear to be thoroughly appreciated by large numbers of the class for whom the lectures are intended. A circular has been recently forwarded by the board to all schools of arts, agricultural societies, and municipal councils throughout the colony, inviting their co-operation in obtaining local teachers and lecturers in agriculture and mining, with a view to classes being formed for these important subjects in populous localities.

As the following is not noted in the last time-table, we have been requested to state that a train leaves Bondi at two minutes past 9 in the morning, reaching Queens-street, Newport, at 15 minutes past 9, and arriving in town at 9:30. The Torpedo and Signalling Corps were exercised at signalling with flags at Berry's Bay on Saturday afternoon. The corps having mustered at Circular Quay, under the command of Captain Walker, with Lieutenants Wilson, Broughton, and Hammond, were conveyed to Berry's Bay in a steam launch which had been chartered for the purpose. Recruiting has lately taken place, and the roll of the corps now numbers 100 men, and of this number 90 are all on parade on Saturday. The exercise underwent at Berry's Bay embraced a regular course of signalling with flags, the signalling being on the dot and dash (single), and the men acquitted themselves in a creditable manner.

Members of the Victorian Defence Force who were lately in Sydney have marked their visit to the V.M., and their high appreciation of the working of a institution, by presenting a handsome set of books to the library. A regular monthly meeting of the committee of the school of Arts was held on Thursday evening last. The president, Mr. Dalgaard, occupied the chair. The members present were Messrs. Teves, Beaver, Berkleigh, Holdsworth, Jones, Gauden, Scott, Perkins, Nuttall, Thomas, and Taylor. The treasurer presented his report, which showed receipts for the month amounting to £120 4s. 8d. The credit balance of the bank was shown at £168 4s. 2d. The committee reported the appointment of two additional members to the committee, and the revision and completion of the number of the magazine. It was determined to call upon a lady member to show cause why she should not be expelled from the institute for writing remarks in volumes lent to her. The sub-committee upon lectures reported the arrangements that had been made for the Saturday evening lectures, and recommended that Sir Henry Parkes should be invited to deliver a lecture to the members of the sub-committee appointed to consider the amendments required in the Act of Incorporation, recommending that the Act be confined to the enunciation of general principles, the executive details being set out in by-laws which could be made, amended, or repealed from time to time without the trouble and expense of an application to Parliament. The report was accepted, and ordered to be printed until the next monthly meeting. On the motion of Mr. Teves, the following resolution was adopted after a lengthy discussion:—"That, in the opinion of this committee, the information regarding business to be transacted, contained in the notices convening meetings of the committee, is of a confidential character, and should be delivered by the members; and further, that it is an impropriety on the part of a member of the committee to communicate to the press or the public information regarding the proceedings at the meetings thereof." An application from members of the Chess Club, for the opening of the room on Sunday afternoon, was accepted.

The annual meeting of the Globe School of Arts was held on Wednesday evening last, at the Globe Town Hall. There were present—Judge Wilkinson, Aldermen Mitchell and Lucas, Messrs. Crispin, Giffard, M. Carthy, and Williams, and a number of the members. Letters were read from Sir G. Wigram Allen and other gentlemen, explaining their inability to be present. The annual report and balance-sheet were presented to the meeting, and the following gentlemen were elected as officers for the ensuing year:—President, Sir G. Wigram Allen, K.C.M.G.; vice-presidents, Mr. M. Chapman, M.L.A., and Mr. P. O. Lucas; secretary, Mr. H. Moxton; treasurer, Mr. J. T. Norton. Messrs. Crispin, M. Carthy, and Williams, with Aldermen Mitchell and Lucas, were also elected as members of the committee, and Messrs. P. M. Lintach and H. Giffard as auditors.

On Saturday night the annual dinner in connection with the Standard Brewery Fire Brigade took place, at the brewery premises, Elizabeth-street. A full muster of the men sat down; Mr. James Toohy occupied the chair. On his right was Captain John Bird, of No. 1 Volunteer Fire Brigade; and on the left, Mr. J. C. Williamson, vice-president. Captain Israel, S.V.P.B., occupied the vice-chair. A number of toasts were honoured, including the health of the firm, Messrs. J. T. and J. Toohy, and "The Sister Brigade of New South Wales and Victoria." Mr. J. H. March, hon. secretary, read the annual report and balance-sheet, which showed a satisfactory state of affairs. The Standard Brewery Fire Brigade, which has been in existence for 25 years, has a creditable record. Handsome and valuable medals were presented to members for the following attainments:—Mr. Woods, 55 years; Mr. Sheehan, 77; and Mr. Ray, 70. The chairman, in the course of a short and practical speech, alluded to the creditable fact that, through the industry and efforts of the Standard Brewery Fire Brigade, not only was damage to outbreaks reduced to a minimum, but it could be shown that "successful" fires—and they would understand what was intimated by that adjective—were nowadays almost entirely done away with. At the conclusion of the banquet a pleasant evening was spent with songs, &c.

The second annual meeting of the Theatre Royal Fire Brigade took place on Wednesday evening last, at the Theatre Royal. The following gentlemen were elected officers for the ensuing year:—President, Mr. J. C. Williamson; vice-presidents, Messrs. J. B. O'Leary, M.L.A., and G. Eastway; captain, Mr. T. Wade; first lieutenant, Mr. W. Reddick; second lieutenant, Mr. G. Eastway; third lieutenant, Mr. J. Paxton; sergeant, Mr. W. Anderson; apparatus officer, Mr. G. Bentley; treasurer, Mr. George L. Goodman; secretary, Mr. S. L. Lazarus. After the close of the meeting the members adjourned to Mr. T. Cripps' restaurant, Pitt-street, to celebrate their anniversary. The chairman (Mr. J. C. Williamson) and vice-chairman (Messrs. O'Leary and Eastway) presided at the highest terms of the members' proficiency since the formation of the brigade. During the progress of the meeting, the chairman reported to the captain, on behalf of the members of the brigade, a handsome set of suits with that gentleman's initials miss in scroll letters on top.

"THE AUSTRALIAN FARMER," a practical handbook for the farmer and station, is, as its name implies, a work devoted to the practice of farming in these colonies. It is edited by Mr. J. C. Williamson, and contains the composition of plants, and then proceeds to treat of the settling upon, cultivation, and irrigation of the land, giving a quantity of valuable information relative to the best kinds of crops and pastures. In addition to these subjects the cultivation of vines, dairying, horticulture, sheep husbandry, and the management of the stock, are treated in a practical and valuable part of the volume, which also contains synopses of the Land Acts of the various colonies. The work has been compiled by the agricultural, horticultural, and pastoral staff of the Australasian, and published for the proprietors of that journal by Messrs. George Robertson and Co., to whom we are indebted for a copy.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. G. A. Pictou delivered the inaugural lecture of the second half of the current year before the Young Men's Society in connection with the Pitt-street Congregational Church. There was a large gathering. Mr. Pictou's address was entitled "The World: the Advent of Christ," and was deeply interesting and much appreciated. An excellent president of the society, presided. An excellent programme of essays for the ensuing season had been prepared by Mr. E. E. Hunt, the hon. secretary. About 11 p.m. on Friday a fire, the origin of which is unknown, occurred on the premises of Messrs. Wright and Weaver, lay and iron dealers, at the corner of Hay and Fisher streets, and narrowly escaped extending to those occupied by Mr. Mark Isaac, grocer, adjoining. In the former case a building consisting of one floor and a loft, containing a large stock of iron, &c., was severely damaged by fire and water. The latter some stock was slightly injured by smoke and water. Messrs. Wright and Weaver are insured with the Mercantile Mutual Company, and Mr. Isaac with the Alliance and British and Foreign Assurance Companies. Both premises are owned by the same party, and the fire was caused by a defective chimney, as was proved by the Metropolitan Fire Brigade, and Nos. 1, 2, 4, 5, and Standard Volunteer Fire Brigade, with hydrants. The Metropolitan, Theatre Royal, Redfern, Surry Hills, and Alexandria, together with members of other volunteer brigades, were also present. Several members of the Naval Volunteer Artillery also rendered assistance; the promptness of the colony in supplying good supply of water prevented a serious conflagration taking place.

About 2 p.m. on Saturday a man named John Dauby, aged 50, was found dead by his employer in a shed near the Orient Brewery, Bourke-street, Redfern. He had been working for a Mr. Flemming as dairyman, and was accustomed to sleep in the building. He was a native of Ireland, and had been in the colony for some time. An inquest will be held at the South Sydney Morgue at 9 a.m. to-day. About 11:30 p.m. on the same day Ellen Brown, a widow, aged 60, residing at No. 48, Lansdowne-street, Surry Hills, was found dead at her residence by her son, Joseph Brown. The latter had left home after tea with a companion named Donald Campbell, and on returning he found his mother in an insensible condition at the foot of the staircase. There was a cut over the left eye, and as she had been left in her customary good health, with no one else in the house, it is surmised that she had fallen downstairs and broken her neck. Dr. Marshall, jun., was promptly called in, but pronounced life extinct. An inquest will be held at noon to-day, at the Golden Age Hotel, High Holborn and Lansdowne streets. On Friday, at 4 a.m., a domestic servant, in the employ of Captain Nichol, Palace-street, Stanmore, was found by her mistress, Mrs. Nichol, dead in the kitchen. The deceased was known as Mrs. Seble, and was a native of Samoa, 33 years old. For several days past she had complained of illness, and it is imagined that by mistake she had swallowed an overdose of pinkettes. An inquest will be held at 9 a.m. to-day at the South Sydney Morgue.

On Saturday evening, Walter Charles Smith (7), residing at 28, Clarence-street, was admitted to the Sydney Hospital and treated by Dr. Musket. He had fallen from a wall in Clarence-street and sustained a compound fracture of the skull, with protrusion of the brain mass. The patient is now in a very serious condition, and is expected to die.

necessary, and the case is one of a very serious character. Maria Daley (65), a cook, residing at 407, Kent-street, was admitted suffering from severe scalp wounds, caused by falling down a flight of stairs. She was attended to by Dr. Lowe. William Montague (49) was taken to the institution by Constable Buchanan, at 9:15 a.m. He had been found in Lower George-street, speechless, and in a very dirty condition, unable to move. Dr. Apjohn attended. Robert McNiven (25), a poultryer, living at 820, Oxford-street, had his right thigh fractured through collision with a cart, whilst on horseback at the intersection of Oxford and Elizabeth streets, Paddington. Dr. Westrum set the limb.

Yesterday morning the body of Christopher Davis, a labourer, who had been drowned by the capsizing of a dingy of Daves Point on the 24th ultimo, was found floating near Parbury's Wharf. It was discovered by two relatives of the unlucky man, named Henry Butler and George Digby, who had been on the lookout, and was taken to the institution by Constable Buchanan, at 9:15 a.m. He had been found in Lower George-street, speechless, and in a very dirty condition, unable to move. Dr. Apjohn attended. Robert McNiven (25), a poultryer, living at 820, Oxford-street, had his right thigh fractured through collision with a cart, whilst on horseback at the intersection of Oxford and Elizabeth streets, Paddington. Dr. Westrum set the limb.

A still further addition to the list of drowning accidents at Bondi occurred yesterday. A youth named Hayman Burket, aged 17, residing with his parents near Bondi, was fishing about noon on some rocks on the east side of Bondi, near the Point, with two companions, David Miller and Frederick Power. The tide happened to be rising, and a large wave suddenly swept the unlucky boy off. He swam about for a considerable time, struggling and screaming for the help which could not be afforded, and then suddenly sank, as though seized by a shark. The body had not been recovered up to midnight.

About 5:30 p.m. yesterday the patient Thomas Beale, who was admitted into the Sydney Hospital on Friday suffering from injuries caused by a fall of scaffolding at the A. J. S. Bank, George-street, died in the institution. He had sustained a fracture of the ribs and a rupture of one lung. Internal complications supervened, and death resulted at the time stated. An inquest will be held on Tuesday.

On Saturday morning, at the Southern Hotel, the City Coroner held an inquest touching the death of a man named George Dowell, a woodman, who had been found hanging by the neck to the balustrade of his lodgings, No. 29, Judge-street, on the previous day. The evidence adduced confirmed the particulars already published, and proved that death had resulted from asphyxia through hanging, and that suicide had been committed. A verdict to that effect was accordingly returned.

Abstract of the numbers of marriages, births, and deaths registered in Ireland during the year 1884, shows the following totals:—Marriages, 22,670; births, 110,195; and deaths, 87,564. In the same year, according to the Royal Irish Constabulary and the metropolitan police, who acted as enumerators at the different Irish ports, 75,898 persons emigrated. A total of 44,329 would thus be returned as having taken place in the population, which in the middle of the year was estimated at 4,993,570. The following return of cases of eviction which have come to the knowledge of the Irish Constabulary during the quarter ending the 31st March, 1885, shows the state of matters in the different provinces:—Ulster—evicted 227 families, re-occupied as tenants 4, and as caretakers 130; Leinster—evicted 64, re-occupied as tenants 2, as caretakers 24; Connaught—evicted 228, re-occupied as tenants 21, as caretakers 69; and Munster—evicted 201, re-occupied as tenants 19, and as caretakers 97. The evicted families included altogether 3448 persons, of whom 1043 were re-occupied as caretakers, and 2405 as tenants. Showing the number re-occupied only include cases where tenants were allowed to resume possession in one or the other of the capacities mentioned above immediately after the eviction. There were many other cases in which tenants were re-occupied within the six months allowed for redemption. In the counties of Belfast, Carlisle, and Waterford there were no evictions during the period covered by the return.

Mr. Victoria Minister of Mines intends (says the Age) to appoint a board of experts to inquire into and report upon the ill results to the health of miners from the use of dynamite in mines, and what preventive measures to adopt. The miners are totally opposed to the use of this explosive, and state that the same is injurious to health. The Minister of Mines has named the Mineworkers' Association to nominate a member of the board. One representative will be appointed by the miners, and the remaining three members of the board will be selected by the Minister.

It is a rare event for the Premier to lose his temper, but, says the Argus, Mr. Bent succeeded in making the hon. gentleman very angry for a minute or two on Thursday. Mr. Bent was handling the loan question, and was dealing with the O'Leary Government part of Mr. Barry's debate—political debate—and then speaking of their efforts to float £4,000,000 in 1882. Mr. Service, he said, was in London at the time, and did all he could to damage the loan. This he learned from letters sent to Melbourne by interested persons. It was a political sin and a disgrace to write letters to damage the loan, and the Premier had a share in it. "I cannot allow this," said Mr. Service, springing to his feet; "the whole thing is a fabrication. Let him produce the letter, or retract the falsehood." While Mr. Service was speaking, and the Opposition corner, with Mr. Mirams as leader, calling for "order," Mr. Bent was for rumination. He decided in favour of a partial retreat, and "withdrawing his words," that is, some of them—but stuck to it that he saw damaging letters; they were sent by other members, in fact, shown round the House. "You insinuated that I wrote them and knew of them, that I was at the bottom of it," pursued Mr. Service. Mr. Bent denied having gone so far as that. What he had said was that Mr. Service was "behind the scenes." "That," replied the Premier, "is a lie." At this critical moment the storm passed off without even a flash of lightning from the Speaker's chair. At the conclusion of Mr. Bent's speech, about an hour later, Mr. Service expressed regret to the House for having used words that transcended the limits of propriety; and this was done so frankly that Opposition members equally with Ministerial supporters took part in the cheering.

In the telegraphic message received by the Geographical Society which was given at the dedication of the Gulf of Papua was given as the Gulf of Carpentaria, and the word "northward" appeared by mistake. It should have been "westward."

The following is the report of the Benevolent Asylum for the week ending July 1, 1886:—Admitted, 11 women; 4 children; births, 4; deaths, 3; discharged, 8 women; 7 children; remaining in the house, 91 women, 107 children, 108. Provisions distributed, 1597 loaves bread, 1104 lb. flour, 244lb. meat, 322lb. sugar, 984lb. tea, 44lb. soap, 81lb. rice, 62lb. oatmeal. Fresh applications for relief, 14; cases reported by the inspector, 22. In 12 cases the relief was discontinued for various reasons. Total number of cases relieved, 382.

RETURN OF ISLANDERS TO NEW GUINEA.

(By Telegram.)
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The voyage of the steamer Victoria has so far progressed satisfactorily. Up to date 210 natives have been landed, and one died. There has been some malaria fever on board, but nothing of any consequence. The expedition has been fortunate in having fine weather. To-day we leave the natives who were kidnapped by the schooner Hopeful, and we may have some trouble with their people; but every precaution will be taken. We expect to be another fortnight on the coast, and then we will return to Port Moresby, thence to Brisbane, reaching there in about three weeks from now. The voyage has been interesting in many respects. This morning we met the German Government steamer Samo, with Dr. Finckh on board. She left Cooktown in January last, and since then has been visiting the German settlements in the islands, but her most important work has been to establish a settlement for a German trading company, six miles west of East Cape, and in the British part of New Guinea. No explanation of this stop has been given, but Dr. Finckh is now on board the Victoria in conference with Mr. Romilly. The Victoria has no man-of-war with her, and Mr. Chalmers was away from Port Moresby when the vessel was there.
